

Cristian Gutierrez

Professor Durie

Art 106

23 August 2021

Short Story

The device I present to you is the Monkey Security and more 3000. Not only does this fine piece of technology grant you the assurance of security. But as well comes to aid in many of your day-to-day tasks. In first receiving the monkey it will have no prior knowledge of your daily life. There is a small receptor that holds the information it obtains by watching what you do. Once adjusted to your routine it will begin following it for you doing the unnecessary time-consuming tasks that might be a burden to you. For instance, in the morning the monkey can make your coffee, prepare your clothes, make breakfast, and be used as an alarm. The monkey then will proceed to enact as your bodyguard and follow you around for the day helping you with any needed task. Then following the night the monkey boots itself into King Kong mode and locks down the house and activates security defenses, cameras, and sets your alarm for the next day. The type of relationship the consumer would have with the machine is commensal, the machine shall see no harm at all at the benefit of the consumer.

